KOWLOON BRITISH SCHOOL ANNUAL DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES.

The annual distribution of prizes to the students of the Kowloon British School took place, yesterday morning, in the school hall, which was gaily beflagged for the occasion. The ceremony was presided over by Mr. E. A. Irving, Director of Education, who presided over a large gathering of parents and friends of the pupils.

After the distribution of the awards the Chairman gave a brief address. He said he was particularly interested in the fact that the health of the school had improved so much. He was talking about the matter the other day to Dr. Smith, who was very enthusiastic. Since the Government inspections, the health of the school, especially in regard to teeth, had improved in a remarkable way. The reason for that was that the periodical medical inspections were a convenient way of drawing the attention of parents to some of the defects in their children's health. It was a great thing, to remedy those defects early. The Board of Education laid the greatest stress on the health of the children, which was as important from an educational point of view as from the point of view of the children themselves. It was manifestly not fair to expect a teacher to make progress with children who were suffering from such handicaps as bad eyesight and bad teeth. Mr. Edwards (the Headmaster) had also pointed out the necessity for a few more classrooms. The school certainly seemed to be crowded. He did not know whether they could get the classrooms in connection with that, the question would arise whether the school could do anything to remedy that. He supposed that it was good that many of the children who had remained in Hongkong during the war would probably go home. There was likely to be a great exodus this year. One great difficulty in dealing with the school was that its numbers were small, especially in the higher classes. One could ask the Government to enlarge upon more expenditure if the classes were larger. If the school maintained its present numbers, he was sure that the Government would want to do everything it could to support it. During the war, it had not been easy to get money for schools, and there was also a difficulty about staffs; but he hoped that things would be very much easier now. He felt that it was for parents to express themselves with regard to anything which they thought would enlarge the school's activities, etc., and they could be quite certain that, if they inform Mr. Edwards, they would receive a sympathetic hearing, and when Mr. Edwards reported to him, he would say as far as he was able. He felt that the British children in the Colony were necessarily handicapped; it would be better if they could be sent home, but as this could not be done, he might say so, he felt that the Government would do all they could for them. The big boys, he understood, were getting on well in Chinese and he was very glad of it. A good deal of thanks was due Mr. Edwards for that and much else. The Chairman, after that, he had not received a formal report on the school that year owing to the absence of the Inspector, but from Mr. Edwards' report he saw that the school had made good progress and he thought they might all congratulate themselves on the fact that, in spite of the war, they were able to advance to the stage they had reached. (Applause.)

Mr. Edwards proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman, and then announced that Mr. Frost had offered two prizes for English composition.

The Headmaster's report stated that the School was opened 172 times during the year. The maximum enrolment was 87 in November as compared with 71 last year; and the minimum enrolment, 67 in July as against 60 last year. The average daily attendance was 68. The attendance was seriously affected by an outbreak of measles in January, which eventually necessitated the School being closed for three weeks. When the School re-opened on March 11th, the annual meeting had made its appearance in the Colony and a large number of children were kept away in consequence. Two cases of diphtheria occurred in December. The Government Medical Officer, Dr. Smalley, carried out three inspections during the year. There were still a few cases of defective teeth, but a very marked improvement is noticeable in this respect.

No alterations have been made in the School Buildings, although, with the increased number of pupils in attendance, the school was in need of at least two more large classrooms.

One girl took the Hongkong Junior Local Examination in July and passed. Classes I. and II. were presented as candidates for the Hongkong University Local Examinations in December. One boy and one girl took the Senior Examination and both passed. Three boys and one girl took the Junior Examination, and two of the boys passed.

The changes in the staff necessitated no less than three re-organisations of the School during the year. In spite of the difficulties thus caused, the annual December examination showed that, on the whole, good progress had been made. Very creditable work was done in Classes 7 and 8. The improvement in handwriting had been maintained, but there were still individual cases which required the special attention of the teachers concerned. Owing to the war, no fresh Kindergarten materials had been obtainable, and the Classes had therefore been dependent on the limited supplies in stock. Very good work had been done in this department, the school being very fortunate in having the services of a Home-trained Kindergarten mistress.

The Director of Education visited the School in April and as a result of his visit, a change of Chinese masters was made with very beneficial results, and the classes were now making good progress in this difficult subject.

Mr. Law, Inspector of Vernacular Schools, inspected the school in December. He reported that the Senior Class had made great progress, and the book work was very thorough. The Junior Class was a more even class and all good.

The scholarships presented annually by the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Company were awarded this year to Cedric Graham and Florence Neave. Six Government free scholarships were awarded.

Thirty-six boys belonged to the Cadet Corps under the administration of the Hongkong Defence Corps. Physical and military drill, signalling and shooting were practised. Twenty-four boys attended the annual camp of instruction held at Lo Wu during the Christmas holidays. The boys were able to indulge in swimming and football through their connection with the Cadet Corps. The School was in need of a much larger playground.

A collection had been made monthly on behalf of the War Charities Fund. During the year, $139.05 was subscribed by the scholars and handed to the Hon. Treasurer of the Fund. The total amount subscribed by the school to the end of 1918 was $478.29.

ST. ANDREW'S WAR BOND DRAWING.

The St. Andrew's War Bond Drawing—the sale of tickets for which closes on the 15th instant—will most probably take place on Friday, the 21st instant, at the City Hall, but the date fixed will be notified later.

The Society has been fortunate in securing, through the kindness of the Directors of the "Santa Casa de Misericordia," the apparatus used by that Society for its drawings at Mexico, and the drawing will be conducted by Messrs. Lowe, Bingham & Matthews.

The drawing apparatus, which has been inspected by representatives of the St. Andrew's Society at Macao, will be brought to Hongkong a few days before the drawing, in order to take place, and though it gives the appearance of being a most intricate contrivance, it is simplicity itself, and the demonstration is sure to provide the spectators with an interesting and exciting time, as in the manipulation of the apparatus nothing is hidden from view.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY. ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.

ST. GEORGE'S BALL TO BE HELD.

The annual general meeting of St. George's Society of Hongkong was held, yesterday evening, at the City Hall. The Hon. Mr. P. H. Holyoak presided and was supported by the following members of the Committee:—The Hon. Mr. H. E. Pollock, Messrs. N. J. Stabb, H. W. Bird, H. W. Looker, W. A. Dowley, M. S. Northcote, J. W. Graham, A. G. Coppin, W. J. Eldridge, P. Cassidy (Hon. Treasurer), and F. A. Wells (Hon. Secretary). There were over fifty members present.

The CHAIRMAN said: Gentlemen, The audited accounts having been before you for some days, I propose to follow the usual custom and take them as read although, I am sure, you will bear with me if, for a moment, I dwell upon them.

The street collection on "St. George's Day" realised the handsome figure of $20,802.60 (Applause)—and our thanks are again due to the energetic band of ladies without whose assistance this result would not have been possible. (Applause).

The "Tombola," which was suggested and organised by Mrs. C. M. Ede, assisted by a splendid band of workers, realised $25,987.80, to which must be added $785.10, being the expenses in connection with the "Tombola" generously refunded by Mrs. Ede. (Applause).

The "War Bond Drawing" results fully justified our high expectations, and by this means the very fine total of $117,500 was added to our special fund. (Applause).

The theatre performance, organised by Mr. W. Sinclair, realised a profit of $12,768.15, consisting, I believe, a record result for any theatrical performance ever given in the Colony. (Applause).

Two generous donations—one of $15,000 and one of $300—from friends who desire to remain anonymous, added to the interest on the account, bring our special effort for "St. George's Day," 1918, to $198,342.91, which has enabled us to remit through Mr. Murray Stewart—whose selfless and arduous work in London throughout the war period, not only on our behalf, but also for the "War Charities" fund, deserves our gratitude and admiration. (Applause)—to various splendid war charities a total sum of $31,934.18, 4d., of which all Englishmen in this Colony may feel justly proud, though we are all perfectly conscious that this splendid result could not have been achieved but for very generous support from all classes of the community—and especially our patriotic friends for whom this Colony is justly famed. (Applause).

In addition to the above anonymous donations, $2,500 was returned from "War Bond" winnings direct to the "Prisoners of War" fund.

So much for "St. George's Day" Special Account. Now for a brief word on General Account. The year began with a balance of $1,520.72, increased during the year to $2,704.70 and to this will be added in 1919 accounts $4,223.43, balance of "Special Account." No call has been made on the Society's funds for local relief during the past twelve months. (Applause)—and the only disbursements have been for small working charges. It is your Committee's earnest desire to build up this fund to a substantial figure that we may be prepared suitably to assist all necessitous and deserving cases, and in this connection I would remind you that, under Rule 17 of the Society's constitution, there is no danger of any part of the fund being dispersed for the purposes of any celebrations whatsoever, but will be kept solely for charity.

The year began with a membership of 8 life and 122 ordinary members, and during the year there have been added 1 life member and 130 ordinary members. It is with profound regret that I have to report the death of three of our members, viz., Mr. F. A. Biden, Mr. T. Elliot and Mr. J. H. Hedges. Our total membership to-day is 328.

Our energetic Hon. Secretary, Mr. J. Bentley, and Mr. J. H. Ramsay, the Hon. Treasurer of "St. George's Day" special appeals, both of whom did yeoman service for the Society, resigned during the year to go home and join up for active service.

The vacancy in the position of Hon. Secretary was filled by the appointment of Mr. F. A. Wells, to whose energy and efficiency I can personally testify—(Applause)—and I am glad to report that he has consented to continue so long as an assistant secretary is appointed for special celebrations. I am further glad to say that Mr. P. S. Cassidy, who has been a very keen treasurer, is also willing to serve for another year. (Applause).

It would be unkind for me to close without reference to the tremendous labours of the Committee and Sub-Committees, who devoted so much of their leisure time, during a period when all were overworked, to the successful prosecution of our "War Bond" drawing, and as one "behind the scenes" I can assure you, gentlemen, the labours were tremendous, and your special thanks are due to Mr. Sandford—(Applause)—upon whom the heaviest part of the work, as Hon. Treasurer, inevitably fell to Mr. Charles Bewick and Mr. J. H. Bentley, as "War Bond" Secretaries; Mr. Bentley and Mr. Wells as Hon. Secretaries; Mr. Coppin and Mr. Perry for their work in connection with advertising; and the Press for their valuable assistance. (Applause).

In conclusion, I may add that we have now, I think, fairly demonstrated that we have become an active Society, and I trust will become an increasing power for good in this Colony as the days go by. I now beg to propose that the report and accounts be presented be adopted. Mr. N. J. Stabb seconded this, and it was carried unanimously.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The CHAIRMAN: Gentlemen, our next business is to elect a Committee for the ensuing year. I have endeavoured to persuade our Vice-President to accept the position of President for this year, but he has informed me that he has very heavy labours in front of him this year and has declined to stand, although I am glad to tell you that he is willing to remain on as Vice-President with the view and hope of taking the post of President in the following year. (Applause). Our next senior member of the Committee is the Hon. Mr. H. E. Pollock, and I have great pleasure in proposing that he be elected President for the coming year.

Mr. STABB seconded this and it was carried unanimously.

Mr. POLLOCK: Gentlemen, I thank you very much for the honour you have done me. I will do my best to promote the interest of the Society. (Applause).

The following were re-elected:—Vice-President, Mr. N. J. Stabb; Hon. Secretary, Mr. F. A. Wells; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. P. S. Cassidy.

The election of the new Committee was then proceeded with. Several names were proposed, but the gentlemen in question expressed their regret at not being able to serve as they were leaving for home shortly. Finally, the Committee was constituted as follows:—Messrs. G. S. Archbutt, H. W. Bird, C. M. Ede, W. A. Dowley, A. G. Coppin, M. S. Northcote, W. J. Eldridge, G. C. Moxon, C. G. Alabaster, S. H. Dodwell, A. E. Crappell and T. E. Pearce, with the Hon. Mr. P. H. Holyoak and Mr. Justice Gompertz (ex-officio).

Next St. George's Day Celebrations. The CHAIRMAN: I put it to you as a suggestion that, with regard to St. George's Day celebrations, we might at any rate carry out the same form of street collection which we had last year. Whether it be for War Funds, or War Charities, or for a War Memorial, I believe money will be needed, and again this year we have to prepare, and gladly do so, to put our hands in our pockets in the same generous way which this community has done in past years during the war. (Applause). I also offer the suggestion to the incoming Committee that at some time during the year, either early or late, we have St. George's Ball. (Applause). The meeting is now open for suggestions.

Both suggestions were agreed to, and it was explained that the Ball would be held as soon after peace was declared as could reasonably be arranged having regard to climatic conditions.

Mr. SPRABERRY: What about having a Tombola?

The CHAIRMAN: I think we may pass that on as a suggestion to the incoming Committee. I doubt very much whether the members realise what a tremendous amount of labour was expended on the Tombola, and I doubt whether we can get a Committee of ladies to carry it on. However, the Committee will consider whether it be practicable or not.

Mr. PATTERSON: Is it possible to have a concert on St. George's Day?

The CHAIRMAN: That's a very good suggestion.

On being put to the vote the proposal was carried.

Mr. DOWLEY: May I suggest that something be done for the children? The CHAIRMAN replied that it was curious that the same suggestion had just been made to him by another member. He would pass it on to the Committee for consideration.

The meeting then terminated.

THE POULTRY OBSTRUCTION. NUISANCE ABATING.

The case of obstruction against several poultry-dealers, remanded from last week, was resumed, yesterday, before Mr. R. E. Lindell, at the Magistracy.

Mr. Shenton, who appeared for the defendants on their first appearance, did not attend on this occasion.

Mr. E. J. C. Wolff, Captain-Superintendent of Police, asked his Worship not to take any notice of Mr. Shenton's absence. He had paid a surprise visit to Ko Shing Street, accompanied by Mr. Shenton. The conditions there were much better. Only the foot-path was filled with crates; the roadway was clear.

When Sergeant Marks paid a visit of inspection to the place, a few days previously, the old state of things still prevailed. Since negotiations had been entered into, the poultry-dealers were endeavouring to mitigate the nuisance. In November last, Messrs. Dennis & Bowley, on behalf of the shop-owners in the locality, wrote to his predecessor, the Hon. Mr. McL. Messer, that the place was obstructed not only by crates but also by trucks. They pointed out that these obstructions were detrimental to the interests of their clients in the event of a fire. Since then, however, the nuisance had greatly abated.

Negotiations were in progress to give the poultry-dealers one-third of the land near the Sailors' Home, but they contended that the area allotted was insufficient, and asked for the whole site at the expense of others. Still, he thought, they should have it.

For the present, if there was any further encroachment, summonses would be taken out against the offenders. He asked for a further remand. The poultry-dealers would be allowed to retain the foot-path until a regular working scheme was enforced.

Mr. Lindell adjourned the case for a week.

HIS RETURN DELAYED.

"I stole the articles in order to get some money to go home," pleaded a Chinese who was charged at the Magistracy, yesterday, with stealing a pair of trousers and a handkerchief from the Kwang Tung. He was sentenced to four weeks' imprisonment.

COMPANY MEETING.

HONGKONG, CANTON AND MACAO STEAMBOAT CO.

The ordinary annual meeting of shareholders in the above Company was held, yesterday, at the Company's offices, Hotel Mansions, Mr. S. H. Dodwell presiding. The others present were the Hon. Mr. P. H. Holyoak, the Hon. Mr. D. Landale and Mr. H. W. Looker (Directors), Messrs. A. R. Lowe, M. S. Northcote, J. Arnold, C. B. Buyers, A. Denison, P. C. Potts, A. E. Crappell, P. Tester, A. E. Griffin, E. Abraham, Chan Sin Kai, and W. E. Clarke (Secretary).

The CHAIRMAN said:—Gentlemen,—Your Directors regret that the present report again shows such a poor result for the year's working. Although freights have been increased wherever possible, and the gross earnings of the steamers have already equalled those of the best year in the Company's history, the heavily increased running expenses have contributed towards the poor net results. The most adverse influence on our figures has been the prohibitive price of bunker coal. The Company has had to pay some 250 to 300% increase on the pre-war cost of this article, some 200% increase in the price of all stores, and about 50 to 100% higher charges for repairs, docking and marine insurance. It has been only by careful management and effecting economies in every department that the report presented is not more adverse, but I am glad to say that the price of our bunker coal has already declined somewhat, and now that the war is to all intents and purposes over, I think we may safely look forward to our running expenses gradually assuming more reasonable proportions.

Since our last annual meeting, your Directors have succeeded in their negotiations for the sale of the Zealandia. The book profit for this sale, amounting to $90,750.50, has been placed to the credit of Profit and Loss Account.

Turning to the balance-sheet, you will notice the Insurance and Underwriting Account has been augmented by the sum of $20,625, representing the Company's share of marine insurance risk carried during the period under review.

You will also note with pleasure that, during 1918, the Investment Fluctuation Fund has shown an increase of $123,724.50, due to the rise in values of local securities held by the Company.

Taking advantage of the favourable exchange, your Directors deemed it not only prudent but also a patriotic step to invest more of the surplus funds of the Company in Sterling War Loans.

Your Directors propose, subject to your approval, transferring the sum of $50,000 from the Equalisation Fund to Profit and Loss Account, leaving a balance of $70,000 at credit of the Fund.

My predecessor in the chair at the last annual meeting mentioned that steps were being taken with the owners of native-owned vessels operating on the Hongkong-Canton Line and the Railway Administration to increase passenger fares. An understanding with all parties was arrived at in July, and, since that date, increased rates, to the mutual benefit of all concerned, have been in operation.

During the latter part of the year, your Directors decided to give a trial on the Canton run to the system of farming-out native passenger and freight space. This system has been in operation with success on the Yangtze for some time, in regard to passenger space, and, as conditions are similar, it was felt that the experiment should be made. In conjunction with the China Navigation Co., with whom we work on joint account on the Canton Line, an agreement was entered into with a Chinese syndicate for a short period, which terminated at the end of January. The arrangement has so far worked satisfactorily; in fact, on the results attained, the Board have decided to enter into a renewal of the agreement for a longer period on terms which, I confidently hope, will prove mutually beneficial to the Company and to the Chinese syndicate with whom we are working. I would point out that the arrangement aims at assuring to the Company a large share of, and a more steady income from, the Chinese passenger and cargo trade without relinquishing, in any way, the management of our vessels, and if, when difficulties arise, a reasonable and fair attitude is adopted by both signatories to the agreement, I see no reason why the experiment should not prove a success.

During the year, the usual Government survey has been held on all the Company's vessels, and the same have all been docked for general overhaul.

Following the example of other local companies, gentlemen, your Board does not wish that the work of the Office staff should be forgotten. The Company's staff is one of the smallest of any limited company in the Colony, and, although circumstances have prevailed, as from showing as good results as we could have wished, your Directors are satisfied that the office staff have worked well and done their utmost in the interests of the Company, and it will, I hope, be in accordance with your wishes that your Directors have voted them a bonus of 10% on their salaries.

It is with reluctance I have to inform you that Captain Clarke, our Secretary, has tendered his resignation, which the Board has accepted with regret, and at the end of the month he relinquished a post that he has honourably and faithfully filled for 13 years. Altogether, Captain Clarke has been 49 years in the service of the Company, and although to-day, he looks as young as when I first met him seven years ago, he feels that he is now entitled to spend his remaining years in retirement, and your Directors feel that this retirement has indeed been well earned. In 1906, Capt. Clarke took over the Acting Secretaryship and soon afterwards received the substantive appointment, since when, through times of prosperity and adversity, the interests of the Company have always been his foremost consideration. As he is remaining in the Colony, in recognition of his long service and in order to still retain the benefit of his experience, it is the intention of your Directors to invite him to a seat on the Board, and I feel sure that this proposal will meet with your hearty approval.

The vacancy created by Capt. Clarke's retirement will be filled for the present by the appointment of Mr. John Arnold as Acting Secretary.

I think that the report and accounts call for no further comment from me, and I now formally beg to propose that they be adopted and passed as circulated.

Mr. D. MACDONALD, in seconding, said:—

—I have much pleasure in seconding the adoption of the report and accounts. After the very clear explanation of the year's working given by the Chairman, there is little left for me to add. The abnormally high freights ruling on the coast trade did not affect the river traffic to anything like the same extent, so, while the earnings of the steamers remained practically the same, the running expenses, as the Chairman has explained, went up to a very high figure. In the circumstances, I think we have reason to feel thankful that we pulled through a very adverse year on the river trade so successfully. The new system of farming-out native passenger and freight space must be left entirely in the hands of the management to work out. We hope it will prove successful and assist to bring better results this year. We are glad to hear that the office staff have been remembered. The ten per cent. bonus on their salaries, which you propose to pay them has been well earned. While we all feel a pang of regret at parting with Captain Clarke as our Secretary, we are pleased to learn that he is being elevated to the Directorate, and feel sure that his long experience and extensive knowledge of the river trade will enable him to be of great value to the Board. If, in order, sir, I would suggest that a small souvenir of silver plate be presented to Captain W. E. Clarke, on which the Directors could record their appreciation of his long and faithful service of 42 years with the Company. The appointment of Mr. John Arnold as Acting Secretary reminds me of a few of us of the time when his father, Mr. Thomas Arnold, was given the same appointment, and if he has inherited only a portion of his father's tact and ability he should prove a successful Secretary to the Company.

The CHAIRMAN, in putting the motion, which was carried—to the meeting, said that the Directors would be pleased to accede to the shareholders' request in regard to Mr. Macdonald's suggestion that a piece of silver plate should be presented to Capt. Clarke.

The Hon. Mr. D. Landale was confirmed as a Director, on the proposition of Mr. Arnold, seconded by Mr. C. B. Buyers.

The Hon. Mr. D. Landale and Mr. H. W. Looker were re-elected Directors, on the proposition of Mr. A. E. Griffin, seconded by Mr. A. DENISON.

Mr. C. Bernard Brown and Mr. A. R. Lowe were re-appointed Auditors at a remuneration of $400 each, on the proposition of Mr. G. H. Potts, seconded by Mr. M. S. Northcote.

The CHAIRMAN announced that dividend warrants were ready, and might be had on application.

Capt. CLARKE, addressing the meeting, said: Mr. Chairman and gentlemen,—Before dispersing, I would like to thank you for your signal mark of honour and all the good things you have said of my services, coupled with the offer of a seat on the Directorate of the Company upon my retirement from the Secretaryship. This I shall take pleasure in accepting, as I shall always be glad to serve and render any assistance in the interests of the Company, in which service I have spent so many years of my life. It is a pleasure to me to know and have your assurances that my services in the past have met with your approval. I thank you for your confidence, and sincerely hope I shall continue to merit your appreciation in the future. On behalf of the office staff and myself, I thank you for the bonus granted.

The proceedings then closed.

LOCKING THEATRE EXITS.

A (local) manager of a theatre, in Yau-mat, was brought up before Mr. T. E. Lindell, at the Magistracy, yesterday, on a charge of having locked the exit doors of his theatre, thereby endangering the audience.

It was stated that the main exit was locked from the inside by means of a padlock, and similar measures had been taken to fasten a large exit near the gallery. Should any accident occur, with the means of egress thus barred, disastrous consequences might result.

The defendant admitted the offence and asked to be pardoned. He would be more careful in the future.

The Magistrate, remarking that the offence was a serious one, fined the defendant $25.

THE SINO-JAPANESE
IMBROGLIO

The later news which has come to hand relating to the Sino-Japanese imbroglio tends to support the view that the first reports were exaggerated. Great excitement was created in Peking and elsewhere by rumours which, we believe, were extravagant owing to lack of precise information and ignorance of recent developments in the world's political situation. It was never denied that the Japanese Minister, Mr. Oyata, went to the Waichiao to protest against the avowed intention of the Chinese Delegates at the European Peace Conference to disclose certain secret agreements between the two Powers, but there was very good reason to doubt whether he was guilty of the indiscretions attributed to him. He was alleged to have threatened to withhold the unpaid balance of $17,000,000 out of the loan of $20,000,000 promised in September; to have pointed significantly to Japan's military preparedness; and to have intimated that no help, political or financial, was to be expected from Great Britain owing to her internal disturbances. While it required no great stretch of the imagination to believe that Mr. Oyata might have informed China that, if her representatives adopted an attitude distasteful to Japan, she must not expect any further favours, it was inconceivable that he would be so foolish as to threaten force and to represent that Japan's oldest ally and China's constant friend was impotent because of labour disputes. Germany's misadventures with regard to the British Empire must have taught the world that, whatever our domestic differences, we stand shoulder to shoulder when danger threatens from outside. Even if it were otherwise, there are several Powers, besides Great Britain, pledged to maintain the sovereignty and territorial integrity of China—amongst them Japan herself. In the summary, called to us from Peking, of the interview accorded by Mr. Oyata to a body of foreign journalists, Mr. Oyata repudiated the suggestion that he attempted to bring pressure to bear on China, and said that he only urged that Japan was entitled, by diplomatic usage, to be consulted before any "secret documents" were published. If, however, China persisted, it could not be helped. From a fuller account of the interview we see that Mr. Oyata expressed his inability to understand the alarm created amongst the Chinese by his visit, "which was a friendly one." There was no objection to the publication of the documents; the question was "one merely of procedure." He denied that he uttered any threat of resorting to military measures, or financial pressure, unless the required assurances were given, or that he referred to Great Britain or her internal troubles. Asked whether Japan would agree to the publication of the Arms Contract of 1916, the Sino-Japanese Military Convention of 1918, and the Shantung Railway Agreement of 1918 (which was signed in Tokio, but not ratified by the Chinese Government), Mr. Oyata said that they could be disclosed if necessary. If his visit to the Waichiao were ignored it would not result in a serious situation, nor was there any intention to exact a penalty. Are we to believe that all this is a tissue of falsehoods? If so, why has Mr. Oyata changed his tone so completely? No sane person could ever have supposed that such tactics as he is alleged to have adopted could succeed. Since Mr. Oyata's disclaimer was made, our Peking correspondent has informed us that, at the request of Japan, China has consented to the publication of the Shantung Railway Agreement. This document provides that the railway shall be run on joint lines, and that the arrangement shall not be affected by any Peace Conference that may be called after the war. In consideration of this, Japan agreed to advance Twenty Million Yen for purposes of carrying out extensions of the Kiaochow Railway. The money was expended by Peking on military operations against the South. In Chinese Government circles it is hoped now that Japan's acceptance of the principle of publicity of secret documents will be applied generally. Anyhow, so far from being terrified, the President of China, we are informed, has telegraphed to China's representatives at the Allied Conference, Mr. C. T. Wang and Dr. Wellington Koo, expressing confidence in them. Even if His Excellency had acquiesced in Mr. Oyata's desires, it seems to have been overlooked, as our Peking correspondent points out, that the Peace Delegates representing the North and South, who are now at Shanghai, would have the power to veto any promises made to Japan by Peking officials. The Diplomatic Corps, according to a foreign official, has practically recognised the Peace Delegations as the sovereign power of China, pending the organisation of a united Government, by consulting them concerning the recent release of the surplus Salt and Customs revenues. The views of the country are reflected in the telegrams despatched to Peking from various representative organisations urging that any such demands as those attributed to Japan should be rejected "in strong terms." The Southern delegates at the Conference between the North and South describe the report, if true, as "most astounding," and declare that no nation possessing full sovereign powers could submit to such intimidation. If necessary the $3,000,000 advanced by the Japanese must be refunded, and the whole nation will assume the responsibility. The incident, therefore, seems likely to further the movement for re-uniting the nation—a consummation devoutly to be wished.

THE SINO-JAPANESE SITUATION.

PEKING, February 11th.

Opinion is rather mixed here regarding the situation vis-à-vis Japan. Certain reports suggest that the Government has yielded to the Japanese wishes regarding a modification of the attitude of the Chinese Peace Delegates. These may be true. It is also undoubtedly true that the President, supported by the Premier, adopted a strong attitude and telegraphed an expression of confidence to the Delegates. He has the sympathy of four Foreign Legations, which enormously strengthens his position.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH TO PARLIAMENT.

The first session of Parliament closed this morning. The President delivered a speech thanking the members for their labours. He hoped they would devote their deserved holiday to considering how China might advance the peace of the world, and he trusted the Chinese would give up party feelings and work in the interest of the nation.

THE ARMISTICE.

SEVERER CONDITIONS TO BE IMPOSED.

PARIS, February 9th. It appears that the Supreme War Council, this afternoon, reached an agreement regarding the necessity, in view of Germany's attitude, of making the conditions of the renewal of the Armistice more severe, by instituting control of demobilisation and production in factories which were previously engaged in war work.

Only the ways and means of securing the execution of these conditions remain to be settled and it is thought that the sitting on February 10th will suffice for this.

SENSATIONAL NEWS ABOUT GERMANY.

LONDON, February 10th. The Paris newspapers, explaining the decision to make the Armistice conditions severer, declare that Marshal Foch was recently compelled to use threats to make the German plenipotentiaries attend the sitting of the Armistice Commission.

CHANGE IN GERMAN ATTITUDE. The attitude of the German plenipotentiaries has changed in the last fortnight. They now declare that they will only accept peace without victory.

GERMANS STOP DEMOBILISING. Moreover, the French military authorities believe that the Germans have stopped demobilising, and have concentrated 18 Divisions on the Eastern Front under General von Hindenburg. Hence, the Allies consider that Germany must be brought to realise the impossibility of resisting the peace terms offered her.

THE GERMANS' SHORT MEMORY. The papers state that Marshal Foch told the Supreme War Council that the Germans are beginning to forget that they are beaten. They have been slow in handing over transport, and are making other difficulties.

ALLIED OCCUPATION OF ESSEN. Marshal Foch has advised the Allied occupation of Essen.

HINDENBURG'S VOLUNTEER ARMY. LONDON, February 10th.

A telegram from Bern states that Herr Haase, before leaving the Socialist Conference for Weimar, said that General von Hindenburg was organising a Volunteer Army of 600,000 in Pomerania and East Prussia, with a view to a reactionary coup d'etat. His Headquarters were at Tolberg on the Baltic coast, which is the stronghold of the Prussian junkers.

A WARNING TO THE ALLIES. Herr Haase has advised the Powers to watch the movements of the Hindenburg Army closely, and, if necessary, insist on the limitation of its strength.

THE ARMENIAN ATROCITIES. TURKISH INSTIGATORS BEING TRIED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, February 9th. The Court Martial has begun the trial of the first party of Turks accused of instigating the Armenian massacres.

The party includes Kemal Bey, ex-Governor of Baghdad, Kewik Pasha, ex-Commander of the Gendarmerie at Yozghad, and Fenar Ali, an official at Yozghad.

The Public Prosecutor emphasised the necessity of punishing the instigators of the crime which had horrified the whole of humanity.

An Armenian lawyer gave evidence to the effect that the victims numbered 3,100, and included women and children.

POLAND.

THWARTING OF GERMANY'S DESIGNS.

PARIS, February 9th. Sir Esme Howard and General Carton de Wiart, the British delegates to Poland, left to-night.

FAILURE OF THE PRINKIPO PLAN.

PARIS, February 9th. Interviewed by a representative of Reuter's Agency, M. Pichon, personally, expressed the opinion that the Prinkipo Conference would not meet unless further acceptances were received.

He pointed out that the Bolsheviks' reply had not answered the Allied invitation, but merely intimated that the Soviets are ready to negotiate; whereas, the Allies had advised them that if all the Russian Governments ceased fighting, and foregathered at Prinkipo, they would meet them and help them to settle their grievances.

THE UKRAINIAN GOVERNMENT.

PARIS, February 9th. Le Temps states that the Ukrainian Soviets have accepted the invitation to confer with the Allies, but prefer Paris to Prinkipo and a later date than February 15th.

BRITISH AND GERMANS IN CHINA.

PROBLEMS OF TRADE POLICY IN THE FAR EAST.

CHAIRMAN OF THE CHINA ASSOCIATION INTERVIEWED.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

LONDON, December 7th.

Following the close of the Great War, the thoughts and energies of business men are being directed to the resumption of trade. So far as the China market is concerned, no question is of greater immediate interest than the British standpoint towards the Germans in the Far East. It is clearly understood that, at Hongkong, the British community do not want Germans in their midst under any pretext for, at least, "a period of years" to quote the resolution passed at a mass meeting held at Hongkong, on November 7th and that resolution is now under the consideration of the Government here. At the Treaty Ports, the British have also a special interest in the question. So, too, in regard to other parts of China. At the time of writing, news reaches London that, at Tientsin, the Germans are urging the Chinese to break their existing contracts with the Allies under the pretext that German firms can give more favourable terms.

Having regard to the importance of this subject of trade policy in the Far East, the Chairman of the China Association, Mr. F. Anderson, the Chairman of the China Association in London, who kindly consented to give me his views generally on the present position.

REPORTS OF THE CHINA ASSOCIATION.

"The China Association," said Mr. Anderson, "has made a strong effort to keep British trade in our own hands after the war. Formerly, the Germans had got into our trade in China to a very considerable extent by giving long credit to the Chinese. These credits were on a basis which English firms did not consider legitimate, but by means of these methods the Germans succeeded in transferring a good deal of our trade to themselves, no doubt with the object of increasing their status generally in China. We of the China Association tried to get up here an understanding among English firms interested in trade with the Far East. We wanted them to do everything in their power to put a stop to the granting of excessive credits, and also that, as far as possible, they should confine their operations to British channels."

"Well, in regard to this, while we got a good deal of support here, and while we believe the Germans will have great difficulty in the immediate future in obtaining the same financial facilities that they enjoyed before the war, the fact has to be recorded that we came up against a certain number of people in this country who plainly told us that they will renew their German connections in China at the earliest opportunity."

"Their reason for this attitude is that they have no important British connections in China, that since the war they have been unable to replace their German connections with British ones, and, in brief, that if they agreed not to revive their trade with the Germans now, they would have no constituents in China at all. In other words, their contention is that firms who did no business with Germans in the Far East before the war would make no sacrifice now, whereas they would have to sacrifice all, or nearly all, their interests."

THE OBJECT OF THE GERMANS.

"I remarked that, having regard to the record of the Germans in China and elsewhere, it was surprising that, apart from the strictly business standpoint, patriotic sentiment did not carry more weight with the class of business people referred to."

"The China Association and others outside," Mr. Anderson replied, "took the view that Germans were not in trade in China only for the sake of the profit they got out of it. They had ulterior motives, chief among these being the desire to extend the German sphere of influence. Recently, we sent out a statement as to how the position stood. This was despatched to the China Association's branches in Hongkong and elsewhere in China. Hongkong supporters of the view that we took. We also urged upon the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and other Chambers the desirability of keeping British trade in China in British hands when business is resumed after the war. Our efforts were, however, without any effective result, mainly owing to opposition from a section of Manchester and Bradford working firms who had extensive transactions with Germans previous to the war."

"I don't know how we can do anything further in the matter," continued Mr. Anderson, "except that by making the subject known in the Press you can stimulate public opinion, and by this means exert influence that will restrain the eagerness of certain British subjects to make money by trading with our enemies, and at the same time assist the latter to re-establish their businesses in China. That is really what it comes to."

THE TRADE POLICY OF THE BRITISH.

"The China Association is not advocating this policy, now that the war is over, purely from hostility to the Germans—quite from motives of revenge, or from a desire to kick them when they are down. We have been working at this from the beginning of the war."

"What we feel is that the Germans have always taken very good care to keep the control of their own trade in China always jealously guarded German trade in China, and kept it in the hands of Germans, they have also done everything they could to get into British trade and undermine our position in China. Our policy, therefore, is this:—We say, 'If the Germans have kept their trade in their own hands, why should not we do so?' After all, it is our trade. I do not see that there is any unfairness in that."

"Hitherto, we have given the Germans every facility in our power, and they have repaid our generous treatment by working against us in every way they could even to the extent of using their Consulate offices at Shanghai as a centre from which to foment a revolution in India. At Hongkong, the question hinges on whether the Germans will be permitted to go back there. That question is being considered by the responsible authorities in London, with whom I have had interviews on the subject, and rather than something will be done. But, of course, as is known, the Germans have resided there at various times, and taken to the influence they have been able to exercise on the Chinese Government. Moreover, they have scored heavily at our expense."

"When China agreed to deport the Germans from that country, it is well known that the German Government threatened to take reprisals, probably by deporting a great number of the inhabitants of French and Belgian territory in their occupation, and by imposing hard conditions on British prisoners-of-war. They refused to ratify the Hague Agreement for exchange of prisoners, unless we undertook to prevent deportation of their nationals in China. As events have turned out, they have treated our prisoners-of-war in the most shameful and barbarous manner, while their nationals have had a privileged position in China, although the latter were entirely in the power of the Allies. The Germans transferred their interests to the Dutch Government for protection, and the Dutch Consuls have refrained from interfering in any way with them. They have done practically what they liked."

THE FUTURE.

"However, I do not think," Mr. Anderson continued, "that the position of the Germans with the Chinese in the future will be quite so favourable. It will not be so influential—as it has been in the past, because it has happened that when the Germans failed to get their way in China they were apt to instil a certain amount of fear into the Chinese. They will not, I feel sure, be able to do that to anything like the same extent in the future."

"Asked for his opinion with regard to probable trade developments in the immediate future now that the war is over, Mr. Anderson replied that the answer to that depended upon shipping. Owing to the great amount of tonnage withdrawn from the China station, trade between here and the Far East has been held up."

"We have been urging the Government," he said, "to put on extra tonnage at the earliest possible moment; and we have pointed out that the trade with China has been so frightfully hit owing to high freights that it is of the utmost importance that this matter should have prompt attention."

"I may tell you," concluded Mr. Anderson, "that Government officials have frankly admitted to me that China has been hardly dealt with, and furthermore, they have assured me that the Far Eastern route is one of the very first that will receive consideration in the allocation of shipping." H.B.

(Since the above was written, the Chinese Government has taken steps to close enemy businesses and to deport enemy subjects. E.B., H.B.P.)

CANTON NEWS.

EXPOSURE OF M.P.s.

It is reported that since the Peace Envoys were sent to Shanghai more than 100 M.P.s. have also left Canton for the same purpose. At recent meetings of the Canton Parliament there has not always been a quorum, and most important questions could not be discussed. It is feared that the M.P.s. will not return, and that, consequently, the Parliament will be unable to function any longer. It is said that the M.P.s. went away, because things were done without the consent of the Parliament.

ANOTHER PEACE ENVOY TO EUROPE.

Report states that, in addition to Wu Chiu-shu, who has been sent to the Peace Conference in Europe, Dr. Wu Ting-fang has been appointed as a representative of the Military Government. ### EXCHANGE BUREAUX.

It is reported that two big loans having been obtained from the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank and the Taiwan Bank, respectively, the Authorities have decided to establish more exchange bureaux, so that the notes may be accepted at their face value.

THE SCARCITY OF RICE.

Owing to the scarcity of rice, certain rice merchants have chartered a number of vessels to transport rice from the Northern provinces to Canton to relieve the people. Several vessels have recently arrived at Canton with large quantities of rice, and the scarcity is thus partly relieved.

The Civil Governor has granted $10,000 in aid of the cheap sale of rice to the poor. He has also ordered various projects to raise funds for the same purpose.

THE ARMED-BURGLARY AT GIBB, LIVINGSTON'S.

ALLEGED ACCOMPLICE COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

A Chinese, alleged to be a confederate of the armed gang that entered Messrs. Gibb, Livingston & Co.'s compradore's office on January 13th, and stole $20,000 and a small quantity of jewellery, was produced before Mr. R. E. Lindsell, at the Magistracy, yesterday.

Inspector Terrett stated that four men, armed with revolvers, entered the compradore's room while two kept watch outside the premises; possibly, another robber was posted at the foot of the staircase. One of the robbers searched the shelves for the keys of the safe. They also forced open the drawer of his desk, abstracting, in all, about $20,000 in money and a small quantity of jewellery. All in the room were tied up with cords. The telephone bell sounded at about that time, and the thieves, alarmed, made off with their booty. On January 15th, the office boy informed the Police that one of the robbers was on the Kuangtung. The prisoner was pointed out as the man and was identified by several others.

The head shuff of Messrs. Gibb, Livingston & Co., To Chan Hing, deposed that, at about 7.15 p.m., on January 13th, several armed men, amongst whom was the prisoner, rushed into his room, levelled their revolvers at him, and demanded the keys of the safe. A number of bank-notes and loose coins, lying on the counter, amounting to nearly $1,000, were picked up by the robbers. His desk was forced open and about $2,000 taken from it. He was then tied up and the keys of the safe were again demanded, one of the robbers, meanwhile, prying him with a dagger. There were other shroffs in the office at the time, and two watchmen were patrolling outside the premises. These were pushed into the office by the robbers, who warned them, under pain of death, to make no noise.

Before leaving to search the safe, the robbers threatened to kill them all if an alarm was raised, but they shouted "robbers" directly the thieves left the room. The money in the safe amounted to between $15,000 and $16,000. In their haste, the robbers left a revolver behind. A revolver and some money, which were produced in Court, were identified by the witness.

The prisoner stated that he was a visitor to the Colony, and was on his way home when he was arrested. Another witness stated that on the night in question, while he and the other lokis were conversing together, four men, including the prisoner, entered the office. The prisoner pointed a revolver at him, while the other robbers stood guard over his friends. One of the men then opened the safe and, after scattering the contents, took all the money.

Prisoner: There is no proof whatever against me. I did not participate in the robbery; the witness only suspects me.

A witness stated that he saw two men coming up the stone staircase and asked them what they wanted. One of them replied that they were in search of the compradore's department. Both men produced revolvers. Later, he saw two men coming from the front door of the office. The lokis were placed on one side of the building and the shroffs on the other. The robbers rifled their pockets. Prisoner was the man who asked him not to make a noise.

To Kam Tsung, a shroff, stated that he was in the compradore's department on the night in question. The robbers hustled all the employees into one corner and then ordered them to unbuckle their coats. Witness lost a bunch of keys and a gold wrist watch. The robbers also took the precaution to remove the police whistle which he was carrying. He could not identify the man who searched him.

Another witness stated that prisoner was the man who stood guard over them. He noticed the robbers extracting money from a drawer, the lock of which had been wrenched open.

Sergeant Shannon said that on January 13th, he went with an employee of Messrs. Gibb, Livingston & Co., on board the Kuangtung, and entered the office. When he reached the engine-room, he saw the prisoner sitting in a sort of hammock, along the passageway, where there was a bright light burning. One of the persons who had accompanied witness immediately identified the prisoner, stating: "He is the person who threatened us with the revolver." Witness then arrested prisoner.

Mr. T. H. King, A.S.P., gave evidence of identification.

Sergeant Dorling said that, when he was on duty on January 14th, opposite the Hongkong Hotel, he heard police whistles being blown. He ran to St. George's building, where he heard a commotion. He found $100 in Hongkong subsidiary coins on the staircase. Witness then went up to the top-floor and asked what was the matter. He was told that four men—two of them armed with revolvers, and two with daggers—had entered the premises and stolen money.

Witness searched the office, and later on in the compradore's department, he found a revolver, which was a five-chambered weapon, fully loaded. Witness was also given several pieces of rope.

The interpreter read out the statement made by prisoner when arrested. In this, the prisoner said: "I am innocent."

Prisoner refused to make a statement, saying that he had been coerced into suspicion.

Mr. Lindsell committed prisoner for trial at the next Criminal Sessions.

CAN GERMANY PAY? NEED OF AVOIDING A GREAT DUMPING OF GOODS.

[BY SIR LEO CHIOZZA MONEY.]

When on the western battlefields you see the devilish work which has made a howling wilderness of so much of the fair land of France, and has reduced great cities to dust and ashes, your heart grows hot within you. One cannot imagine what has been done; the hideous crime has to be seen to be believed. And well I remember, as I went through the long rows of rubbish heaps that once was Lens, revolving in my mind how the Germans could be made to pay. Not that monetary compensation is in the nature of expiation for it leaves the arch criminals unscathed, and murder most foul is still unavenged.

Can Germany pay? It is a complex problem. What is Germany? Sixty years ago, she was a geographical expression. Yesterday, she was an empire. Today, she is in dissolution. Let us clear our minds by first considering Germany as an economic unit. Can that unit afford to pay?

The answer to this question is abundantly clear, and, as they say on the Treasury bench, in the affirmative. Germany, as an economic unit, could pay, and pay in full, given time. She is unscathed materially by war. Her splendid coal, which will last longer than ours, her fine towns, her magnificent railways and canals, her well-equipped factories, her great deposits of potash and zinc, her spreading forests—all these are as good as, or better than, when war broke out. Her power of work, the energy of a people great in numbers, is hardly impaired. She has a larger population than when she marched in dishonour through Belgium, although it is true she has since lost some 1,000,000 of her young men.

TAXED TO PROSPERITY.

Exercising this great economic power, Germany could probably pay £250,000,000 a year to the Allies during the next ten years, and yet be as well off at the end of the decade as she was when she began the war.

Further, she could in a succeeding period of ten years furnish £400,000,000 or more per year, and at the end of the two decades be better off materially than in 1914. The productive powers of mankind are only now beginning to be realised, and the war has taught every one how easy it is for an organised nation to produce wealth for any purpose, good or bad.

But what would the "paying" mean? It would mean the expropriation from Germany of the Allies of German goods and products. There is no other way, for all the gold in Germany would furnish only a negligible indemnity—the cost of twenty or thirty days of the war to us. There is a certain amount of German investment abroad which could be transferred to the Allies, but this would not foot the gigantic bill which she ought to be made to pay.

And it is when we arrive at this point that we see difficulties about indemnity payments as States are now established.

Germany can only pay in the main by work, as France paid Germany by work in 1870. But Germany working wholesale to export to the Allies would make grave trouble for the Allies. Even in the seventies, the payment of a comparative trifle by France to Germany was followed by economic trouble to the victor, and France, of course, was not ruined as some people at the time thought would be the case. Quite the reverse.

EFFECT ON LABOUR.

Our State is not a Socialistic one, which could cheerfully accept as its share of the indemnity for ten years a practically unlimited quantity of manufactured goods per annum without disturbing the labour market, leaving work otherwise undisturbed, and just adding the goods to the national stock for Socialistic distribution.

Our State is an individualistic State, in which importing is in private hands and industries under private control. Consequently, a sudden flood of German products, followed by ten or twenty years of continued flood, would throw everything out of gear. Before the war, our total importation of goods from Germany was a mere bagatelle compared with what a huge indemnity payment would bring.

Dealing, then, with Germany as an economic unit able to pay, she ought to be made to pay, but there would have to be selection of indemnity imports by the State and perhaps a storage of indemnity imposed by the State. We can imagine the Allies demanding such things as potash, zinc, iron, and timber in annual instalments, to be handled by the Governments in such fashion as to help and not dislocate their own industries. We can imagine the Allies taking payment in certain materials by triangulation exchange, so that Germany could export her goods to the neutrals while we draw materials from those neutrals. We can imagine Germany being compelled to furnish the new and manufactured materials for the restoration of France and Belgium.

NO PUNISHMENT.

But if Germany were thus to pay goods and products, she would have to be allowed to trade. Like ourselves, she is poor in many materials, and cannot work without imports. It is a queer choice for us. If Germany cannot trade, she cannot pay more than a little. If Germany trades, she can pay a lot. If she trades, then even as she pays she will re-establish her economic life, just as France did in 1870, and that is not punishment as I understand the word.

All this is to speak of an entire Germany working under some stable Government, individualistic or Socialistic, it matters not which.

Who shall say, though, what the Germans of tomorrow will be? Who can say what German power or powers will appear at the Peace Conference, or with what degree of authority German delegates will be able to speak? It is because I cannot answer these questions that I think it useless to discuss the subject further for intelligent readers at this moment.—Daily Express.

BRITISH INDUSTRIES. GOVERNMENT CONTROL.

The full report of the proceedings of the second annual meeting of the Federation of British Industries proves how marked has been the progress of the federation since its inception two years ago. It now numbers 976 members, and includes 171 trade associations. That its activities are founded upon sound ideals is evident from the resolutions which were passed at the meeting. At the outset of the proceedings, Sir Richard Vasear-Smith pointed out that in the past the federation had been the object of a certain amount of criticism and suspicion. There were many, he said, to whom the whole idea of amalgamation and co-operation is anathema, and who consider that absolutely unfettered individualism is essential to the continuance of British prosperity. There are others who see in the federation a capitalist combine, aiming at war to the death with Labour and the consumer. This kind of suspicion was fast dying out.

That the question of the State control of industry is seriously regarded was evident from the very first remarks of the new president, Sir Vincent Caillard. In returning thanks for his election, he said they would almost certainly need a great amount of combined effort and many strong united hearts together at the rope to pull the Government off its system of control. Control may be very necessary during a war, and he did not deny that it has been necessary. But in times of peace it is merely a stranglehold upon industry which is against the best interests of the whole community. To all the problems of peace they would have to bring the same indomitable courage, the same perseverance, the same patience and the same ability which have been directed to the problems of war, and he had no doubt that the members of this federation when facing these problems of peace would not allow any poison of selfishness to weaken them, but would bring to bear upon them unconquerable will and indomitable courage and continued perseverance.

Among the many problems created by the war, probably none is of greater importance than the general attitude of the State to industry. Sir Algernon Firth pointed to the necessity of encouraging the free flow of capital into industry, especially having regard to the large numbers who, during the war, have for the first time become interested in State securities. When the war commenced, there were in this country only 445,000 holders of British Government securities, whereas to-day there are, in round figures, 164 million holders of various types of Government securities. The view of the federation as to what the Government's attitude to industry should be is given in the following resolution, which was unanimously carried:

"That the Federation desires to impress upon the Government, and the country at large, the necessity (1) of maintaining the principle of private ownership of capital and encouraging the free flow of capital into industry, and (2) of preserving and encouraging that spirit of individual enterprise and initiative which is the vital principle of national life. The Federation regards it as essential that the Government should turn its attention to the assistance and stimulation of private enterprise, and avoid any action tending to transfer initiative from the individual to the State. The Federation considers that the proper regulation of industry can best be attained by industrial self-government in co-operation with the Departments of State and the organization representing Labour and other interests concerned, and it resolves to use its own organization to promote these objects so far as possible."

Emphasising the supreme importance of British industry, on which the whole social and commercial fabric of the country ultimately rests, and the serious responsibility in relation to the community which is thereby imposed upon manufacturers, the federation urges on the Government the necessity of recognising the importance of industrial interests. It holds that the representatives of the employers should be consulted no less than those of the employed in all matters affecting industry. The federation on its part pledged itself to endeavour by co-operative and other means to raise production to the highest level, both in respect of quantity and quality, to reduce the expenses of distribution and the cost of goods to the consumer, and to ensure, by promoting the fullest co-operation between employers and employed, the maintenance of industrial peace and the enjoyment by all those engaged in industry of the fullest share practicable in the creation and distribution of wealth. It would not commit itself to any political party, but would examine all political questions from this point of view, which it would, when necessary, present to the House of Commons and elsewhere.

On the vital question of economic policy, Sir Vincent Caillard was emphatic in his remarks. He thought it was urgently necessary that the Government should be pressed immediately to construct a scheme of Customs duties on those industries on which it is proposed to impose them—to construct a scheme, test it, and examine it thoroughly, so as to be ready to put it into force. It would take, he thought, certainly nine months to a year to get a tariff ready, and all that time, admitting, as he assumed it would be admitted, that a section, possibly a large section of British industry, is requiring this scheme of Customs duties, all that time months to a year after the war, or perhaps more, they would not be able to have the protection that they needed. It was of the most urgent necessity that the Government should be requested, and requested with no feeble voice, to prepare such a scheme without any implication that it is asked for as a matter of immediate application, because they had not yet framed a policy. The same remarks exactly applied, but perhaps in a less degree, to the questions of subsidies and transport. Subsidy is only another form of protection, and the Government would have to consider it at once. The same applied to transportation. What had they in view about transportation? They did not know anything at all. They had heard of the nationalisation of railways, and he had even heard of the nationalisation (Continued at foot of next column.)

PROBLEMS OF THE PRESS. TRIBUTE TO AN INDEPENDENT JOURNALIST.

A remarkable tribute was paid to Mr. Robert Donald on his resignation of the editorship of the Daily Chronicle, nearly 200 journalists and a large number of public men attending at a luncheon given in his honour at the Connaught Rooms. The luncheon was organised by Mr. H. A. Gwynne (who occupied the chair). Mr. J. Alfred Spender, Mr. A. G. Gardiner, Sir Stanley Le Bas, and Mr. Sydney Brooks.

Mr. Gwynne, in proposing the health of the guest, said this gathering was a great tribute to a distinguished journalist; but it was also something more. We were now facing a problem in journalism. There was nothing in law or outside law which prevented enterprising men from buying newspapers and running them, both to further their views and for the commercial advantages which they would bring; but personally he preferred the old-fashioned proprietor who had certain faiths and certain principles, and who stuck to them, and who had created the journalism of to-day. If we were going to have combines, by which public opinion was going to be influenced through many channels on the ipse dixit of one, two, or three men, journalists would become slaves to an idea which was not the ideal for which they had been fighting.

Mr. P. O'Connor, P. O'Connor of Mr. Donald's oldest friends in journalism, warmly supported the toast.

Mr. J. A. Spender, who also spoke to the toast, said Mr. Donald had testified at a great personal sacrifice that, although a paper could be sold, an editor could not be bought.

Mr. Donald, after expressing his profound appreciation of the honour paid to him, said he was not in entire agreement with Mr. Gwynne on the subject of combinations of the Press. This was a case of great combinations, and he did not think newspapers could be excluded from the modern tendency. He drew a distinction between combinations such as that of the Northcliffe newspapers, which were run by newspaper men, and combinations of men who thought that when they bought a few shares in a newspaper they became newspaper men. In Germany, before the war, the Press was Prussianised. The Government had an official organ and a semi-official organ. Every department had its Press Bureau and its news editor. The consequence was that during the war the German people never knew what they were fighting about. He believed that we in this country on the propaganda side did something to help them to know. Hindenburg said that Lord Northcliffe had demoralised his army and his people, but in that statement, Hindenburg was a little premature, because, although Lord Northcliffe had done remarkably well in Austria and Hungary, he had not at that time, owing to the sapience of the War Office, been able to bring his operations in Germany. He (Mr. Donald) did not suggest that the German system was likely to be introduced into this country; but the Press here had had too much Government control and too much Government inspiration during the war, and there was a beginning of the Prussian system in every department of the Government having its own Press agency, and more than one minister having his own Press agency. British institutions rested upon freedom of speech and freedom of the Press—and anything that lessened that freedom would be a national danger.

of shipping. He was convinced that the nationalisation of shipping would be the greatest catastrophe to industry that this country had ever seen. He was not quite prepared to use the same strong language about the nationalisation of railways, but, properly organised, he believed it is far better to leave great industries of that kind in private hands. Still, they had to get some scheme, and give the advantages of cheap transportation to the industries of this country. The whole matter resolved itself into the following question of definition. Are we to organise ourselves and be ready for peace, so that the health and strength of the nation and the whole empire shall be recovered rapidly on the life-giving diet of great production, or are we once more to sink back into the hopeless condition of unorganised inter-war, and helpless acceptance of dumping and other ills preying on our very vitals, and thus once and for all abandon our position in the van of civilisation?

The views of the Federation on the question of economic policy were embodied in the following resolution:—"That as soon as the views of the various groups and sub-groups on the question of national economic policy have been ascertained, these should be considered without delay by a committee representative of all the main groups, with a view to the formulation and immediate presentation to the Government of a national policy framed to secure, so far as possible, the respective requirements of the various industries in regard to the imposition of protective duties, maintenance of free importation or grant of assistance by way of subsidy or otherwise."

"It is further resolved that the committee should bear in mind the desirability of allowing preferential treatment: (1) to the various parts of the Empire, and as far as possible to our Allies in the present war, in any policy that may be adopted, and of urging upon the Government the necessity of proceeding immediately with the preparation of provisional schemes in order to apply a practical test to the problems which are bound to arise in connection with the claims which may be advanced by specific industries to protection from unfair competition."

Included among the other topics affecting industry, the Federation discussed and framed resolutions dealing with taxation, especially in regard to the provision of adequate reserves to meet the cost of renewals and extensions which will be necessary during the transition period after the war, technical education, and housing. Dealing with the question of labour, the Federation recorded its approval of the general principles underlying the first report of the Whitley Committee, and invited the various sub-committees to consider how far those principles could be applied to their industries.
